PREFACE

This report presents statistics on the number of inhabitants of the State, its counties, and minor civil divisions (townships, etc.). In addition, separate figures are also presented for urban places, wards of cities of 5,000 or more, and other areas of the State. These data are based upon tabulations from the Seventeenth Decennial Census of the population of the United States, its Territories, and possessions conducted as of April 1, 1950. Provision for the Seventeenth Decennial Census was made in the act providing for the Fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses which was approved on June 18, 1929.

The major portion of the information compiled from the Census of Population of 1950 will appear in Volume I, Number of Inhabitants, and in Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. This report is a preprint of Chapter 26 (Montana) of Volume I, which is to present, in a single publication, statistics on the number of inhabitants for each State.

The materials presented here will also appear as Chapter A of Part 26 (Montana) of Volume II. Volume II will comprise a series of separately published parts, one for each State and a summary for the United States. The use of separate parts makes the basic materials on characteristics of the population for a given State available to the public in a single publication. Within the part for a State, Chapter A will recapitulate the statistics on the number and distribution of the population within a State; Chapter B will present statistics on the general characteristics of the population of the various political subdivisions of the State, such as counties, incorporated places, and the like; and Chapter C will present data on the detailed characteristics of the population of the larger areas within the State, such as cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more and standard metropolitan areas.

The materials presented here were prepared under the supervision of Howard G. Brunsman, Chief, Population and Housing Division, and Dr. Henry S. Shryock, Jr., Assistant Chief for Population Statistics, by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, Chief, Demographic Statistics Section, and Charles P. Brinkman, Chief, Population Distribution Unit; the compilation of the statistics was under the direction of Robert B. Voight, Assistant Chief for Operations. The collection of the information on which these statistics are based was under the supervision of Lowell T. Galt, Chief, Field Division. The geographic work, including the delineation of special types of urban territory and the preparation of maps, was under the supervision of Clarence E. Batschelet, Chief, Geography Division.

MONTANA

Number of Inhabitants

The State.—Montana was organized as a Territory in 1864 from the northeastern part of Idaho Territory with boundaries substantially the same as those of the present State. It was admitted to the Union in 1889 as the forty-first State. Its population on April 1, 1950, according to the Seventeenth Census, was 591,024. The State has a land area of 145,878 square miles. In 1950 there was an average of 4.1 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 3.8 in 1940. Among the States and the District of Columbia, Montana ranked forty-third in population and third in land area.

In 1870, the first year in which it was enumerated separately in a Federal census, Montana had a population of 20,595 (table 1). In 1950, 80 years later, its population was about 29 times as large. The rate of population growth was rapid between 1870 and 1920. Thereafter, the rate of growth slackened, with a decline experienced in the decade 1920 to 1930 and with the rates of growth for the following decades substantially below those for the Nation as a whole. Between 1940 and 1950, an increase of 31,568, or 5.6 percent, was recorded over the 559,456 persons enumerated in 1940.

Usual place of residence.—According to usual Census practice, which dates back to 1790, each person enumerated in the 1950 Census was counted as an inhabitant of his usual place of residence or usual place of abode, which is generally construed to mean the place where he lives and sleeps most of the time. This place is not necessarily the same as his legal residence, voting residence, or domicile, although, in the vast majority of cases, these different bases of classification would be identical.

In the application of this rule, persons were not always counted as residents of the places in which they happened to be found by the census enumerators. Persons in places where guests usually pay for quarters (hotels, etc.) were enumerated on the night of April 11, and those whose usual place of residence was elsewhere were allocated to their homes. Visitors found staying in private homes, however, were not ordinarily interviewed there. Information on persons away from their usual place of residence was obtained from other members of their families, landlords, etc. If an entire family was expected to be away during the whole period of the enumeration, information on it was obtained from neighbors. A matching process was used to eliminate duplicate reports for persons who reported for themselves while away and were also reported by their families at home.

Persons in the armed forces quartered on military installations were enumerated as residents of the States, counties, and minor civil divisions in which their installations were located. Members of their families were enumerated where they actually resided. In the 1950 Census, college students living away from home were considered residents of the communities in which they were residing while attending college, rather than as persons temporarily absent from their parental homes as was the practice in 1940. In 1950 the crews of vessels of the American Merchant Marine in harbors of the United States were counted as part of the population of the ports in which their vessels were berthed on April 1, 1950. In 1940 such persons were treated as part of the population of the port from which the vessel operated. Inmates of institutions, who ordinarily live there for long periods of time, were counted as inhabitants of the place in which the institution was located; whereas patients in general hospitals, who ordinarily have short stays, were counted at, or allocated to, their homes. All persons without a usual place of residence were counted where they were enumerated.

Urban and rural population.—The 1950 urban population of Montana comprised 258,034 persons, or 43.7 percent of the population of the State (table 1). The urban population was living in the 26 urban places in the State. Two-fifths of the urban population was living in the three cities of 25,000 inhabitants or more in the State—Billings, Butte, and Great Falls (table 2).

The 1950 rural population of Montana comprised 332,990 persons, or 56.3 percent of the population of the State (table 1). Of the rural population, 59,217 persons, or 17.8 percent, were living in the 28 incorporated and 9 unincorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants (table 2).

Urban definition.—Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprised all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

There were no urban-fringe areas in Montana. The urban population of Montana according to the 1950 urban definition, therefore, consisted of the 252,906 inhabitants of the 25 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and the 5,128 inhabitants of Silver Bow Park-Floral Park, the one specially delineated unincorporated place of 2,500 inhabitants or more. Since there were no places urban under special rule in Montana according to the old definition, the population of the 25 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more comprised the urban population under the old definition. The population of Silver Bow Park-Floral Park—5,128—represents the gain in the urban population which resulted from the change in definition.

Although the Bureau of the Census has employed other definitions in the course of its history, the statistics on the population by urban and rural residence for the years 1870 to 1940 are shown in accordance with the old definition. The 1950 statistics are shown in accordance with both the new and old definitions.

Trends of urban and rural population.—Trends in the urban and rural population can be examined only on the basis of the old definition. On this basis, the urban population of Montana increased steadily from 84,554 in 1900 to 252,906 in 1950. Both the most rapid rate of increase and the largest numerical increase over the 50-year period in the urban population came in the decade 1900 to 1910. The 1950 figure was 41,371, or 19.6 percent, higher than the 1940 population of 211,535. Of the seven cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more in the State, all but Butte participated in the growth of the urban population between 1940 and 1950. The rates of gain ranged from 2.3 percent for Anaconda to 36.9 percent for Billings (table 4). In 1900 there was only one city of 25,000 inhabitants or more; by 1950 there were three cities of this size. Over the 50-year period the number of persons living in cities of this size increased from 30,470 to 104,299 (table 3). The proportion of the population of the State living in urban territory rose from 34.7 percent in 1900 to 42.8 percent in 1950.

The rural population of Montana also increased between 1900 and 1950 (table 1). The rural population, which was 158,775 in 1900, rose to 376,878 in 1950. In each of the following decades, however, the rural population has declined. The largest decline as well as the most rapid rate of decline came in the decade 1920 to 1930. The 1950 figure of 338,118 was 9,803, or 2.8 percent, below the 1940 total of 347,921. The proportion of the population of Montana living in rural territory declined from 65.3 to 57.2 percent between 1900 and 1950.

Counties.—The counties in Montana ranged in size from Petroleum with a population of 1,026 to Yellowstone with a population of 55,875 (table 5). That part of Yellowstone National Park in Montana is independent of county organization. Between 1940 and 1950, 21 of the 56 counties in Montana increased in population. Fifteen of the 21 counties with increases also had gained in the previous decade. More than four-fifths of the population gain of the State was accounted for by Yellowstone and Cascade, the most populous counties in the State. Yellowstone County had the most rapid rate of increase among the counties, 35.7 percent.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are divided, the Bureau of the Census applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The minor civil divisions in Montana are the civil townships, school districts, and election precincts. The incorporated cities and towns form subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located.

Table 6 shows statistics on the population of each county by minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. The population of each incorporated place and unincorporated place is shown in italics under the population of the minor civil division in which it is located. When an incorporated or unincorporated place lies in two or more minor civil divisions, the population of the several parts is shown in table 6 in the appropriate minor civil divisions, and each part is designated by "part." Figures on the total population of such places are given in table 7. Unincorporated places are designated by "uninc." Changes between the 1940 Census and 1950 Census in the boundaries of the areas listed are shown in notes to table 6. For changes in boundaries prior to the 1940 Census, see reports of the Sixteenth Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 618-627, and reports of earlier censuses.

Incorporated and unincorporated places.—There were 120 places in Montana in 1950 incorporated as cities or towns and 10 unincorporated places of 1,000 inhabitants or more. There were 331,274 persons living in the incorporated places, 78,368 of whom were living in the 95 places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. Of the 20,266 persons living in the unincorporated places, 15,138 were in the nine places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants. The incorporated places in Montana ranged in size from Bearcreek town with a population of 162 to Great Falls city with a population of 39,214.

Political units recognized as incorporated places in the 1950 Census are those which are incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages, with the exception that towns are not recognized as incorporated places in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin.

The Bureau of the Census has delineated boundaries for the thickly settled urban fringe around cities of 50,000 or more and has also delineated boundaries for unincorporated places of 1,000 or more which are densely settled population centers without corporate limits. Although there are unincorporated places within the urban fringe, it was not feasible to establish boundaries for such places, and therefore they are not identified as separate places.

The count of urban places in the 1950 Census includes all incorporated places of 2,500 or more regardless of location and unincorporated places of 2,500 or more which are located outside the urban-fringe areas. Incorporated places of less than 2,500 which lie in the urban fringe are not recognized as urban places.

Table 6.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930 TO 1950

"Uninc." designates an unincorporated place. "Precincts" shown here are election precincts; "townships" are civil townships; "districts" are school districts; "joint districts" are school districts situated in 2 or more counties. Comparative figures shown wherever possible in counties redistricted between 1940 and 1950, and between 1930 and 1940. Figures for 1940 and 1950 not available for unincorporated places or places incorporated since Apr. 1, 1940. Areas for which no population has been reported in any of the last 3 censuses are not shown. Boundary changes between 1940 and 1950 given in footnotes; for changes between 1930 and 1940, see reports of 10th Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 618-627. Total population of a place located within 2 or more minor civil divisions appears on table 7.
